

CERN OPENDAYS

- ▶ Explore the future with us
- ▶ Explorez le futur avec nous

On 14 and 15 September 2019, CERN will open its doors for the public to go to the heart of the world's largest particle physics laboratories. We want to share our endeavours to discover what is the nature of our universe, and what it is made of. We also want to show the public how we promote openness, diversity and peaceful collaboration through science.

We will give our guests the chance to discover CERN's facilities, both underground and on the surface. There will be free admission to debates, film screenings, theatre performances, experimental workshops and around 70 visit points spread all over the site. In doing so, we invite everyone to come into direct contact with the science of today and tomorrow.

This memorable experience will be the 2019 CERN Open Days.

The last time we did this was in 2013, and there will not be an event like this again for several years, so this is a rare opportunity for our partners and not to be missed!

We will attract as much attention as possible to the event, activities and, crucially, to our partners. We will engage the media, advertise on transport networks, issue press releases, have a live broadcast and promote heavily through social media.

On social media, CERN has 2.56m Twitter followers, more than 686,000 Facebook followers, 105,155 LinkedIn followers and 380,000 followers on Instagram.

We will also publicity push the 2019 CERN Open Days through the dedicated website <https://opendays.cern/>

We invite you to take the opportunity to Come Explore the Future with Us!

SOME NUMBERS

Over the two Open Days,

- more than 3,000 physicists, engineers and staff will share how and why we work;
- approximately 3,000 will guide and assist our visitors; and
- approximately 80,000 people will come to CERN.

CERN is fascinating, and people are curious!

We are already preparing ourselves for a hive of activity surrounding the many questions about who we are, what we do and who we work with.
